LA FOLLETTE MAKES ATTACK ON SUPREME COURT NAMING TAFT

Declares Highest Court
Instead of Congress Is
Ruling Power In Address To Federation.

ASSUMED POWERS

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 14.—Asserting that the Supreme Court of the United States is now the actual ruler of the American People Senator La Follette in a speech to the American Federation of Labor convention proposed the passage of a constitutional amendment giving Congress the right to nullify any decision of the high tribunal. The Supreme Court has assumed a power over the laws and public policies of the country which the framers of the constitution never intended it to have. I believe this question of judicial usurpation is now the supreme issue. La Follette declared in his speech which was full of attacks on the Court for its decisions hostile to labor. The Senator said he would seek the support of the labor and farmer vote for his amendment. He turned his attack particularly upon Chief Justice William H. Taft. He said Taft had been repudiated by the voters of the United States, that he could not be elected to the high office which he holds and yet by reason of the position he holds he wrote the opinion in the Coronado Coal Co. case and other decisions hostile to labor.

Sixteenth Annual Commencement Friday At College Of Music

The Sixteenth Annual Commencement of the Susquehanna College of Music will be held on Friday evening in the College auditorium. The commencement will take the form of an undergraduate recital and every department of the college will be represented. The numbers will show what remarkable work has been done by the students this year, in their respective studies.

Miss Eugenia Mitchell will receive a certificate showing her proficiency as a musician and as a mark of merit for the study she has devoted to music during her College course.

The presentation address will be made by Rev. E. C. Reeve of the Presbyterian Church.

The public is very cordially invited.

ATTENTION FIREMEN

WORKMAN'S CASH GROCERIES WILL INVADE MAIN LINE

With Opening Of Store
At Johnstown, Mgr.
Thurston Announces
Plans For The Future.

AIM IS 100 STORES

The Workman's Cash Grocery Company, adding the more link to their rapidly increasing chain Store No. 16 will be opened sometime this month at Johnstown, Pa. This will be their first store along the main line. It is their intention to open several more stores in Johnstown. Manager Thurston says that he expects to put stores all along the main line from Pittsburgh to Harburg and does not intend to stop until he has one hundred stores.

This company has their own bakery, also building up their own warehouse from which all their stores will be supplied. This does away with the middle man's profit which means a saving which then customers will receive the benefit of. It is Mr. Thurston's desire to make their stores the best up to date stores and a place where it will be a pleasure for the customers to do their shopping. His intention is to help it to be pleasant and courteous to everyone and whatever they do not overlook or neglect the children. He feels that when children come into the store to shop for their mother, they are sent there with instructions to get what they want and hurry home, he always says that mother has confidence in the clerk or manager of that store or she would not send her children there. For this reason he says it is the duty of any clerk in any store to give the best possible attention to the children. Mr. Thurston can be found nearly every day at his office over the Johnstown Store from seven thirty A. M. to five thirty P. M. and he would appreciate it very much if anyone who has a complaint to make would either call on him personally or by phone, and it will have his best attention.

Let us all join in wishing the Workman's Cash Grocery Co. the best of luck in opening up along the main line.

LENINE III. BUT ## NOT NEAR DEATH

AS WAS REPORTED

Berlin, Germany, June 14.—Control of Soviet Russia is passing into the hands of triumvirate, as did Franco in the days of the revolution, according to Freilicht, Nicola Lenin, no longer the active and keen witted dictator is turning over the reins of Bolshevism to three leaders, Kaminitoff, Klov and Stalin, it is stated. The Soviet Premier is not actually at the point of death, as has been stated but is compelled by his physical condition to leave Moscow for six months, for a complete rest.

LAD OF SIX HOOKS FOUR POUND TROUT; DADDY LANDS HIM

William Grubb, six year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grubb, of Bellefonte is proudly strutting about these days for being a champion fisherman. The other day with his father he was fishing in Spring creek. Unexpectedly, he felt an awful tug on his rod and line. He was almost pulled into the stream.

Then Dad came to his assistance and landed a monster trout, a speckled beauty that measured 23 1/2 inches and weighed 4 1/2 pounds.

Dad then caught a big sucker but his son would not be beaten, and, in turn also landed a sucker.

Long May It Wave!

HOW TO TREAT OUR FLAG

Flag Day is at hand and, once more the etiquette of the flag becomes important in thousands of towns and cities. To help dispel many uncertainties, The American Legion Weekly, published in the issue of August 6, 1921, a page of illustrations and rules. This page has been used as a text in many communities, and because so many requests have been received for the issue in which it appears, it is reproduced below.

THE RULES IN BRIEF

The man who is in uniform salute in military style when the flag goes by, but when in civies the best form is to take off the hat and hold it against the left shoulder. In draping the colors the simplest rule to remember is that the Stars and Stripes always claim the place of honor, the forefront, the right or the highest elevation. Another rule is that the colors should never be allowed to touch the ground or the deck.

DON'T'S

Don't sew the flag onto a sofa pillow.
Don't use it as a silk handkerchief.
Don't twist it into fantastic designs.
Don't use it in any form of advertising.
Don't let it drag in the dust in handling it.

IN DECORATING, THE FLAG SHOULD NEVER BE FETTERED OR DRAPED. ALWAYS HUNG FLAT.

If hung so stripes are horizontal, Union should be in the left upper corner.

If hung perpendicular, Union should be in the right upper corner.

When the national flag and another flag fly from the same pole, there should be double halyards one for each flag.

The flag should never be allowed below a person sitting.

When carried in parade or when crossed with other flags, the Stars and Stripes should always be at right.

When the flag is used in unveiling a statue or monument, it should not be allowed to fall to the ground, but should be carried aloft to wave out, forming a distinctive feature during the remainder of the ceremony.

When the flag is placed over a bier or casket the blue field should be at the head.

As an altar covering, the Union should be at the right, as you face the altar, and nothing should be placed upon the flag, except the Holy Bible.

The flag should never be reversed except in case of distress at sea. Published at request of Moshannon Chapter, D. A. R.

CORRECT USE OF THE FLAG

The flag should be raised at sunrise and lowered at sunset. It may be raised at other times, but should never be left out at night, except when it is under fire of an enemy.

On Memorial Day, the flag should be displayed at half mast from sunrise until noon, and at the peak from noon until sunset.

In raising the flag to half-staff or half-mast, it should always be run to the peak and then lowered one breadth of the flag. In retiring, it should first be run back to the peak and then retired. It should never be allowed to touch the ground.

When the "Star-Spangled Banner" is played or sung, stand and remain standing, in silence, until finished.

When the flag is passing on parade or in review, if you are walking, half-if sitting, rise, stand at attention and remove your hat.

The flag should never be worn as whole or part of a costume. As a badge it should be worn over the left breast.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Hile and family left today on a motor trip which will take them to Washington and other places of interest near the nation's capital.

ALL IS READY FOR OBSERVANCE OF FLAG DAY AT COURT HOUSE THIS EVENING; OLD GLORY WAVES FROM EVERY HOUSE

Children Will Assemble At The High School,
From Where They Will March In A Body
To Court House Corner—Leave Your Car
On The Side Streets Please.

LEGION BAND WILL SERVE THE MUSIC

SCHOOL CHILDREN

Assemble at the High School at seven o'clock on Wednesday evening to take part in the celebration of Flag Day. If you have a flag, bring it with you. If not one will be furnished to you. But come, take part in singing the patriotic songs you have learned in your schools and lead the community in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

These cheers for the Red, White and Blue.

Chorus
Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue,
Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue,
Thy banners make tyranny tremble,
Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue.

"Old Glory" to greet now comes
With eyes full of love to the brim,
May the wreaths of our heroes ne'er wither,
Not a star in our banner grow dim;
May the service united ne'er sever,
But they to our colors prove true!
The Army and Navy forever,
Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER.

Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd, were so gallantly streaming?

And the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.

Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

AMERICA

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing;
Land where my fathers died,
Land of the pilgrims' pride,
From ev'ry mountain side
Let freedom ring.

Our fathers' God, to Thee,
Author of liberty,
To Thee we sing:
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light;
Protect us by thy might,
Great God, our King.

COLUMBIA, THE GEM OF THE OCEAN
O Columbia! The gem of the ocean,
The home of the brave and the free,
The shrine of each patriot's devotion,
A world offers homage to thee,
Thy mandates make heroes assemble,
When Liberty's form stands in view
Thy banners make tyranny tremble,

Oh, thus be it ever when freemen shall stand
Between their lov'd home and wild war's desolation;
Blest with vict'ry and peace may the heav'n rescued land
Praise the Pow'r that hath made and preserved us a nation.
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust!"

And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

THURSDAY, JUNE 29, IS KIDDIES' DAY AT THE CLEARFIELD DRIVING PARK

Elks Making Even Greater Preparations Than Last Year—When Thousands Of Little Folks Were Royally Treated.

The local Elks Lodge will give their annual treat to the kiddies of Clearfield on June 29th. The occasion is known as Kiddies' Day and will be staged at the Clearfield Driving Park, where all the kids of the community regardless of age, sex, color or creed are expected to be present to enjoy the program and good things set before them by this great American fraternal organization.

Great preparations are being made for this occasion and when June 29th arrives everything will be ready for the biggest time Clearfield Kiddies have ever seen. When you recall the huge success of this function last year you'll have some idea of what a real task Clearfield Elks have set for themselves.

Several thousand little folks were entertained to their heart's content last year without accident of any kind and the Elks will attempt to equal that safety record while far eclipsing last year's entertainment record.

There is more or less congestion at different refreshment stands and on the lawns last year and some jostling and crowding before the little folks had their fill. Even that discomfort will be done away with this year as a coupon system has been devised which will eliminate all danger of one fellow getting the other fellow's share. But we have promised the Elks to tell you more about the big time in later issues and we are going to stop now, but whatever you do, don't forget that Thursday, June 29th is Elks Kiddies' Day in Clearfield. You know what that means.

Climbing Higher Than Man Has Ever Gone Before.

To reach the peak of Mt. Everest has been man's ambition for many years. Three Englishmen, Mallory, Somerville and Norton, have gone 28,800 feet, farther than man has ever gone before, without artificial supply of oxygen. They are just 2200 feet below the summit, ready to advance with tanked oxygen. This photo was taken as the expedition crossed the snow barren at Jolly La.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR BABY WELL

Baby's Nightclothing

Baby's night gowns are very satisfactory if made of single stockinette. For a very young baby winter night gowns may be drawn up at the feet with a string that is run through the hem. But for older babies, garments made with feet are better.

In winter you may have a sleeping bag for the baby, made of any woolen material, preferably a soft blanket. You may use a single blanket folded in the middle crosswise. Sew it together on one end and one side and fasten the top in two places some inches apart with hooks and eyes. The baby sets inside this blanket.

If you use such a sleeping bag for your baby you will save yourself much worry as to whether your baby has kicked his covers off during the night.

Shoes and Stockings

Keep the legs and feet of the young baby very warm.

Be sure to feel his feet often and if they are cold use some sort of foot wrappings as soon as he begins to walk.

A mixture of wool and linen stockings are best, and in the long run most economical. Others of wool and cotton or of wool and silk may be used. Have about three pairs of the second size. These may be washed out quickly and dried on stocking stretchers. Short booties, particularly of the knitted type may be worn when your baby is taken out doors in the winter time. When the baby begins enough. But he will need shoes and buckskin are best.

covering in addition to the skirts and faced shoes are best, as they support baby's ankles. Patent leather is not good material to choose for baby's shoes. Dull leather, which is soft and warm weather if his feet feel warm blankets.

to walk buy him shoes with firm soles. In cold weather leggings and over shoes are necessary for the baby who is old enough to walk outdoors. Have an older boy can go barefooted in your baby's shoes loose and long enough to avoid crowding the toes.

In shape the shoes should follow the outline of the baby's foot.

WILLIAM H. NECOMMER

William H. Necommer was born in Cumberland County, Pa., nearly 85 years ago, spending most of his life in Mahaffey and vicinity. He was buried from his late home in Greenwood Township, Tuesday afternoon, May 30. Rev. B. Hilbish of the Mahaffey Methodist church had charge of the funeral. A large number of his friends gathered at his late home to pay their last respects. He was laid to rest in the Mahaffey Cemetery. Mr. Necommer was married to Miss Mali a Bloom on May 2nd, 1858. Of this union ten children were born, two of whom are deceased: Mrs. Clara Sunderland and Mrs. Sadie Kester. The widow, Mrs. Necommer and eight children mourn their loss. Max P., of Clearfield.

ALL WRONG

Look for the cause of backache. To be cured you must know the cause.

If it's weak kidneys you must get the kidneys working right.

A Clearfield resident tells you how.

F. R. Waple, 422 W. Front St., says: "I was troubled with a bad pain in the small of my back which caused me a lot of distress. I also had severe headaches and a lame and tired feeling all over. I purchased a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to do me a lot of good from the start. Two boxes of this medicine cured me up in fine shape. Since then, when I have had an attack of that kind, I have used Doan's and have always found them to bring good results."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Waple had. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

TROUBLE BREWS IN BROWNSVILLE OVER STARTING OF MINES

Brownsville, Pa., June 14.—Guards in the coal mining towns along the Monongahela River were increased today owing to the tense situation created by reports that operators planned to resume in full with strike breakers. Hundreds of eviction notices have been served on striking miners, many to be operative before the week ends. Many of the strikers are seeking shelter with friends and the house they are forced to vacate are at once occupied by strike breakers. Over two hundred eviction notices were enforced last week and three hundred are to be made effective this week. The hatred against strike breakers broke out here last night when three hundred miners attacked non-union miners. The strikers laid in wait for 50 strike breakers expected to arrive on an early train. When the non-union miners appeared the mob broke into a yell and pursued three of the men through the principal streets of Brownsville. The men sought shelter in a moving picture theatre. The proprietor of the theatre was forced to give up the men who were badly beaten and told to get out of town.

Like a great "mother ship" carrying supplies for a squadron of destroyers or submarines, so the far-reaching Atlantic system of tank-trucks, pumps and storage stations stands out as an ever present, ever ready source of supply for gasoline-needy motorists.

No other gasoline surpasses Atlantic in quality and dependability. None is more scientifically fitted to the requirements of present-day motors.

But that isn't all. No other gasoline in the State has behind it a distributing organization that even approaches the Atlantic system in scope and thoroughness.

All of which means that when you buy Atlantic you get gasoline which not only is always right, always uniform, but always OBTAINABLE—three vital essentials to maximum carburetor efficiency and the consistently smooth, full-powered operation of any motor.

Mrs. Eunice Kline has returned from Lynchburg, Virginia, where she attended the Commencement Exercises of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, her daughter, Athalia, being a member of this year's graduating class.

Miss Athalia Kline, who graduated from Randolph-Macon Woman's College last week will spend the summer at her home on Locust Street.

Roofs Thatched But Town is Modern. In the thatched-roof homes of Tacloban, on the little Philippine island of Layte, the electrical idea shines brightly every night, for most of these homes are electrically lighted, and the town, with a population of 12,000, has its electric light and power plant with three 22½ kilowatt generators. The streets are bright at night.

Human Vanity in Buying. Ostrich feather fans, priced in one New York establishment at $150, may be had at another place only a few blocks away for $30. The fans are bought at identical prices in the same wholesale establishment. Because of human vanity, the proprietor of a store which sells to one class of people could no more dare to charge too little than another would dare to charge too much, writes Fred Kelly in The Nation's Business. The woman who pays $30 for a feather fan in an unimportant shop might not be willing to pay much more than that; but the woman who deliberately goes to the most expensive store in town might feel only contempt for the establishment if she found luxury articles there priced within the pocket-book range of the masses.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

The first American automobile, built and run by Elwood Haynes in Kokomo, Ind., in 1893, is to be loaned by the Smithsonian Institute for the Fourth of July celebration in the Indiana town. The inventor was arrested on Michigan Avenue in 1895 for starting horses and "endangering human life" with his "panting locomotive."

Judge Joseph Sabath, who has heard over 6,500 divorce cases in two years of his Chicago incumbency, advises young people to marry because he has found that the misunderstandings of youth are easier to adjust than the bitterness of older couples.

America is fast becoming a milk drinking nation. In 1921 every man, woman and child in the United States consumed an average of 49 gallons of milk, or nearly a gallon a week per capita. In 1920 the per capita consumption was 43 gallons.

The department of agriculture has been delving in dairy farm statistics to ascertain just how much cream and milk the 25,061,000 cows produced last year and its distribution.

Production of whole milk, which includes milk and cream, for household purposes in 1921 was 45,153,000,000 pounds, 5,000,000,000 pounds in excess of 1920. The whole milk represents 46 per cent of the total quantity produced. Butter, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk, ice cream and other products consumed 46,488,403,000 pounds.

When the United States takes up a new idea, an improvement in machinery, travel, comfort, convenience, pleasure or aught else in these lines, it goes into it in a thorough, wholehearted way that leads the world.

We do not dip just tentatively—we plunge.

We are not afraid of a new thing; we are unhampered by conservatism; we are free spenders; we are not timid about junking the old good for a new better.

Nothing long remains the exclusive possessions of the rich. No matter how high the initial cost, American invention, ingenuity and enterprise succeed in reducing it by cheap editions for popular consumption.

Six months ago the radio was a baby idea, now it has outgrown man-size clothes as a big industry.

We invented moving pictures and we lead the world in the size of our audiences.

We invented the telephone and we out-talk through a mouthpiece all other nations.

We invented the phonograph and cheapened its price to fit the smallest purse.

We invented most of the agricultural machines. The full list trails far out into the perspective.

We did not invent the automobile but we own 83 per cent of the motor vehicles, exclusive of motorcycles and tractors in the world. We possess 10 million out of the world's 12 million. Every two families in the United States, on the average, owns an automobile or an auto truck.

There is, after all, nothing quite like a Jersey Bathing Suit. It is good-looking, wears well, and provides just the right warmth when the day or the water is just a bit nippy. Some rather swagger color combinations and new necklines are features you will notice in these suits.

We are featuring the famous Bradley line of Bathing Suits and every member of the family can be outfitted here.

BUG DOES $72,500,000 DAMAGE TO FORESTS IN NORTHWEST

THE GREAT ENEMY OF THE WESTERN PINE FORESTS, THE PINE BEETLE, AND PICTURE SHOWING HIM IN HIS ACTUAL SIZE.

By PHILIP J. SINNOTT

Klamath Falls, Ore., June 13.—War to the death is being waged on the Western Pine Beetle, which has done $72,500,000 damage to forests in the northwest in 10 years.

Federal and State Governments are co-operating with private owners of timber lands in an extensive campaign. They are spurred to every effort by fear that the beetle may spread from its present location and destroy the large body of western pine in America.

Large stretches of the Black Hills forest in the Dakotas were swept entirely clear of western pine before control methods were devised.

The threatened timber belt is estimated as one-sixth of the standing western pine on the earth's surface. It extends from central Oregon into central California.

Pine, of the most used varieties of lumber, is becoming scarcer every year.

An area of 1,200,000 acres, contain-beetles.

Northward Flow of Bees.

Mainly rivers flow north for part of their course, but because most of the rivers of the central part of the United States are tributaries of the Mississippi and because of the wide shape of the continent, not many rivers have a general northerly course. The principal rivers which flow north are: Champlain, St. Lawrence, Ottawa, Saginaw, Red River of the North, St. Mary's river, Kootenai river in part and San Joaquin river.

HESSIAN FLY HARMS WINTER WHEAT CROP

Infestation Regarded as Worst in Many Years.

Where Parasite Is Present in Large Numbers Crop Should Be Plowed Under, as It Will Not Amount to Anything.

A prevalence of Hessian fly is reported in winter wheat sections and, judging from samples received from many areas, the infestation is the worst for several years.

Favorable climatic conditions, coupled with an absence of a parasite that ordinarily destroys the larvae of the Hessian fly and too early planting of the wheat last fall, is the cause of the outbreak. Where wheat was sown early it needs to be carefully examined for traces of the fly.

Signs of the infestation may be detected by examining the wheat field.

Hessian Fly and Wheat—Insert Shows Adult Female, Greatly Enlarged.

If it has stunted plants upon which small brown seedlike bodies are attached to the stalks, the fly is probably present in the pupal or "dax seed" stage. These brown seedlike bodies can be found below the surface of the ground between the leaf sheath and the stem of the plant. Within a few weeks small goatlike flies hatch out, laying a second crop of eggs which result in the spring brood of flies.

The Hessian fly has four stages in its life. The egg, the maggot, the pupa and the fly. It is the maggot, a white, fleshy worm, about one-fifth of an inch long, that does the damage. If the plant survives the first attack there is a chance of considerable damage resulting from the second crop which eat the stems and cause the grain to lodge and lessen the grain production.

Wheat that is badly infested with the Hessian fly should be plowed under, and it will not amount to anything as a crop and will only serve as a breeding ground for further crops. Often some parts of the yield only are affected and the farmer may use his judgment as to turning under only a part of the field.

Where volunteer seedlings of last year's crop are detected containing Hessian fly they should be plowed under at once. If there are any suspicious signs of the presence of the fly in the fields the entomologists urge that samples be sent to the state entomologist for examination.

PLANS TO CONTROL EROSION

Gullies Cause of Considerable Loss by Washing Away Fertile Soil—Ways to Reclaim.

The gully is one of the things that keep rain from being an unmixed blessing to the farmer. That it is an inconvenience and causes damage is obvious, but in Farmers' Bulletin 1234, "Gullies—How to Control and Reclaim Them," by C. G. Chandler, first issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, it is shown that loss of the most important is the washing away of fertile soil that can never be returned.

After discussing the different types of gullies and their causes, the bulletin, which is illustrated with photographs and drawings, goes on to describe in detail methods of controlling erosion, such as plowing in and seeding, planting trees, and building dams of various kinds. By following the suggestions and plans farmers should be able to prevent further erosion in most cases and to reclaim badly gullied land. In some cases expensive structures such as concrete walls are needed, but usually inexpensive materials—brush, straw and stones—are recommended.

The bulletin may be obtained free of charge by addressing the department at Washington, D. C.

PLAN TO ERADICATE SORREL

About Simplest Way Is to Spray With Solution of Copperas—Quicklime Also Kills.

About the simplest way of killing sorrel, if you do not want to cultivate the land, is to spray it with a solution of copperas (sulphate of iron), made by dissolving two pounds of copperas to each gallon of water. Repeat the spraying as often as the sorrel begins to make growth. You can also kill this weed by staking quicklime in water and sprinkling the water and lime over the plants, repeating as often as necessary.

Putting It Politely.

COURT NOTES

Suit was entered in Prothonotary Ralston's office yesterday by J. A. Gleason, Esq., representing Leon Bros., wholesale produce dealers of Buffalo, New York, who are suing Damus Bros., of DuBois, for $895.10, the price of a car load of fruit sold to George Tamer, of Altoona, on the order or guarantee of the DuBois people.

George Berger, by his attorney Boulton & Forsyth, began suit against Mrs. Crissie Laing and Roy Berger in an effort to establish his title to a lot in Blain City which he claims to have owned and paid taxes on for the past thirty-three years. Notwithstanding these facts he declares Mrs. Laing has sold the lot to Roy Berger and he brings this suit to establish his ownership and protect the property.

A. M. Liveright, Esq., representing the Wolf Clothing Co., of Pittsburgh also entered suit against H. Bender, of Chalmers in an effort to recover $139 said to be due for eight suits purchased by Bender from the Wolf Co.

Greatness and Lowliness.
It is dangerous to show man too plainly how like he is to the animals, without, at the same time, reminding him of his greatness. It is equally unwise to impress him with his greatness and not with his lowliness. It is worse to leave him in ignorance of both. But it is very profitable to recognize the two facts.

BLUE BALL MINER DIES AT PHILIPSBURG HOSPITAL

William Dalbert James of Blue Ball, died at the Cottage State hospital at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon as a result of complications following injuries received in a coal mine, near Blue Ball, a couple of weeks ago. Funeral services will be held at his late home at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon with Rev. Oaks Maying charge. Interment will be made at Mock's cemetery.

The deceased, who was aged 46 years, is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Mabel Smeal, and one son, John, and two daughters, Olive and Ora. One brother and two sisters also survive. They are John, of West Decatur; Miss Rachael, of New York, and Mrs. Harry Knapp, of Clearfield.

The Human Mouth.
Talking has greatly modified the human mouth. The important sounds of P, V, R, O, U, W, F, and M are made with the lips. The prehensile bulb of the lower lip is a large, firm, constant use, crowding the two outer curves on either side to the corners of the mouth. In many mouths the lower lip exceeds the upper in size. You can gain a very clear idea of the difference of motility for the two lips by inverting your head and looking at some one talking. Habit has accustomed you to see the lower lip in strong motion, and so you do not notice it, but when your head is inverted the speaker's mouth appears upside down, and a difference is readily apparent.

VISITORS' DAY AT BOY SCOUT CAMP WILL BE TOMORROW

Troop No. 4 of the local Boy Scouts who went into camp at Camp McPherson Monday morning are reported to be having a high old time.

Camp Director Warren decided the past two mornings were a bit too chilly to order the lads into Montgomery for the usual morning plunge. The plunge was made optional with the gang on Tuesday morning. Just two of the "hardboiled gang" qualified for the polar bear class and dove beneath the icy waters.

Tony Angelo, the new cook, was voted "somech ef" before the first day in camp was over and "mess call" continues to grow in popularity as each meal time approaches.

Tomorrow is visitors day and the boys would like to have all their friends come up and see them in their "wild state." If you happen to have a watermelon or two in your pockets why just take them along they will be as welcome as the flow ers in May.

It is estimated that 500,000 gallons of the airplane industry is now engaged in dyeing the finished machines. The industry is now engaged in dyeing the finished machines. The industry is now engaged in dyeing the finished machines. The industry is now engaged in dyeing the finished machines.

Commercialites Will Observe Ladies' Night Monday At Dimeling

A well attended meeting of the Board of Directors of the Commercial Club was held last evening at which plans and problems of the club for the ensuing six months were thoroughly discussed. With the development of the club in size and service the question of assuming new and larger duties and responsibilities is being agitated and needs to be wisely considered in the near future by the club as a whole. It was announced that the next meeting on Monday June 19th, would be "Ladies Night" and would be held in the Dimeling Ball room with the entertainment in charge of the new committee of which Cortes Bell is chairman. The program as arranged will give the members and their lady friends something to think or laugh about for days to come.

"They All Rejoice."
See where the sun, with face of insufferable splendor, goes swimming through the day; see where the soft and silver moon, with sheets of stars goes swimming through the night. What an eloquent silence! There they shine and move, perhaps wonderfully (cheer—hosts upon hosts), but there is no celebrating pomp of sounds, only an all-embracing pomp of silence—not a whisper, not a rustle, through all the vasty dome. Our dimmed ears and hearts are soothed, our petty cares and extremities are hushed.—E. F. Rarr.

Brother Of Ward Must Tell All He Knows To Grand Jury Under Order

White Plains, N. Y., June 14.—Ralph D. Ward today was summoned before the grand jury to tell the inside story of the killing of Clarence Peters by his brother Walter S. Ward. District Attorney Weeks had secured from Justice Morchauer an order compelling Ralph to answer questions before the grand jury or go to jail. Ralph Ward is said to have learned from his father the facts of the shooting of Peters by Walter Ward. It is these facts that he is expected to reveal today. The elder Ward is now in Williamsport, Pa., and cannot be reached by a subpoena at this time.

CONFESSION OF POWELL IMPLICATES MRS. BRUNEN

Mount Holly, N. J., June 14.—A new confession of Charles Powell, confessed slayer of Honest John Brunen, led to the arrest of Mrs. Doris Brunen, wife of the slain showman, Ellis Parker, Burlington County Detective, announced today. Parker made this announcement after visiting Mrs. Brunen in the County jail here where she is not far removed from the cells occupied by Powell and Harry C. Mohr, brother of Mrs. Brunen, both of whom are named by Powell as accomplices. He made a statement that Mohr had hounded him into shooting Brunen with a sawed-off shot gun while seated beside a window in his home.

SPECIAL DRIVE DURING JUNE TO UNDERWRITE COLLEGE EDUCATIONS

UNIQUE CONTRACT WITH EDUCATIONAL AGREEMENT ASSURES NECESSARY FUNDS

The month of June will be devoted by the representatives of the Equitable Life Assurance Society to a nation-wide campaign for underwriting college educations for America's boys and girls. The plan provides for a special contract on the life of either parent, issued while the prospective college student is a mere youngster. The contract at maturity is made payable in periodical installments over the usual college course of four years, beginning when the boy or girl reaches age.

If the parent on whose life the contract is based should die prematurely, the proceeds are kept intact, drawing interest ready for use of the son or daughter when college age is attained. Thus, whether a father lives or dies, such a contract will make certain the college education for the son or daughter.

Full particulars and details will be given by,

MARY MARIE

By Eleanor H. Porter

SEPTEMBER

Well, vacation is over, and I go back to Boston tomorrow. It's been very nice and I've had a good time, in spite of being so mixed up as to whether I was Mary or Marie. It wasn't so bad as I was afraid it would be. Very soon after Father and I had that talk on the piazza, Cousin Grace took me down to the store and bought me two new white dresses, and the dearest little pair of shoes I ever saw. She said Father wanted me to have them.

And that's all—every single word that's been said about that Mary-and-Marie business. And even that didn't really say anything—not by name. And Cousin Grace never mentioned it again. And Father never mentioned it at all. Not a word.

Father's been queer. He's been awfully queer. Some days he's talked a lot with me—asked me questions just as he used to, all about what I did in Boston, and Mother, and the people that came there to see her, and everything. And he spoke of the violinist again, and, of course this time I told him all about him, and that he didn't come any more, nor Mr. Easterbrook, either; and Father was so interested! Why, it seemed sometimes as if he just couldn't hear enough about things. Then, all of a sudden, at times, he'd get right up in the middle of something I was saying and act as if he was just waiting for me to finish my sentence so he could go. And he'd go, just as soon as I had finished my sentence. And after that, maybe, he wouldn't hardly speak to me again for a whole day.

And so that's why I say he's been so queer since that night on the piazza. But most of the time he's been lovely, perfectly lovely. And so has Cousin Grace. And I've had a beautiful time.

CHAPTER VIII

Which Is the Real Love Story.

BOSTON. FOUR DAYS LATER.

Well, here I am again in Boston. Mother and the rest met me at the station, and everybody seemed glad to see me, just as they did before. And I was glad to see them. But I didn't feel anywhere near so excited, and sort of crazy, as I did last year. I tried to, but I couldn't. I don't know why. Maybe it was because I'd been Marie all summer, anyway, so I wasn't so crazy to be Marie now, not needing any rest from being Mary. Maybe it was 'cause I sort of hated to leave Father.

And I did hate to leave him, especially when I found he hated to have me leave him. And he did. He told me so at the junction. He asked me had I been a little happier there with him this year than last; and he said he hoped I had.

And I told him, of course I had; that it had been perfectly beautiful there, even if there had been such a mix-up of him getting ready for Marie, and Mother sending Mary. And he laughed and looked queer—sort of half glad, and half sorry; and said he shouldn't worry about that. Then the train came, and we got on and rode down to the junction. And there, while we were waiting for the other train, he told me how sorry he was to have me go.

He said I never knew how he missed me after I went last year. He said you never knew how you missed things—and people—till they were gone. And I wondered if, by the way he said it, he wasn't thinking of Mother more than he was of me, and of her going long ago. And I told him I loved him dearly, and I had loved to be with him this summer, and that I'd stay his whole six months with him next year if he wanted me to.

He shook his head at that; but he did look happy and pleased, and said I'd never know how glad he was that I'd said that, and that he should prize it very highly—the love of his little daughter. He said you never knew how to prize love, either, till you'd lost it; and he said he'd learned his lesson, and learned it well. I knew then, of course, that he was thinking of Mother and the long ago. And I felt so sorry for him.

"But I'll stay—I'll stay the whole six months next year!" I cried again.

But again he shook his head.

"No, no, my dear; I thank you, and I'd love to have you; but it is much better for you that you stay in Boston through the school year, and I want you to do it. It'll just make the three months I do have you all the dearer, because of the long nine months that I do not." He went on very cheerfully and briskly; "and don't look so solemn and long-faced. You're not to blame for this wretched situation."

The train came then, and he put me on board, and he kissed me again—but I was expecting it this time, of course. Then I whizzed off, and he was left standing all alone on the platform. And I felt so sorry for him; and all the way down to Boston I kept thinking of him—what he said, and how he looked, and how fine and splendid and any-woman-would-be-proud-of him he was as he stood on the platform waving good-by.

And so I guess I was still thinking of him and being sorry for him when I got to Boston. That's why I couldn't be so crazy and hilariously glad when the folks met me. I suspect. Some way, all of a sudden, I found myself wishing he could be there, too.

Of course, I know that that was bad and wicked and unkind to Mother, and she'd feel so grieved not to have me satisfied with her. And I wouldn't have told her of it for the world. So I tried just as hard as I could to forget him—on account of Mother, so as to be loyal to her. And I did most forget him by the time I'd got home.

But it all came back again a little later when we were unpacking my trunk.

You see, Mother found the two new white dresses, and the dear little shoes. I knew then, of course, that she'd have to know all—mean, how she didn't please Father, even after all her pains trying to have me go as Mary.

"Why, Marie, what a world is this?" she demanded, holding up one of the new dresses.

I could have cried.

I suppose she saw by my face how awfully I felt 'cause she'd found it. And, of course, she saw something was the matter; and she thought it was—

Well, the first thing I knew she was looking at me in her very sternest, sorriest way, and saying:

"Oh, Marie, how could you? I'm ashamed of you! Couldn't you wear the Mary dresses one little three months to please your father?"

I did cry, then. After all I'd been through, to have her accuse me of getting those dresses! Well, I just couldn't stand it. And I told her so as well as I could, only I was crying so by now that I could hardly speak. I told her how it was hard enough to be Mary part of the time, and Marie part of the time, when I knew what they wanted me to be. But when she tried to have me Marie while he wanted me Marie, and he tried to have me Marie while she wanted me Marie—I did not know what they wanted; and I wished I had never been born, unless I could have been born a plain little girl, or Bessie, or Annabelle, and not a Mary-Marie that was all mixed up till I didn't know what I was.

And then I cried some more.

Mother dropped the dress then, and took me in her arms over on the couch, and she said, "There, there," and that I was tired and nervous, and all wrought up, and to cry all I wanted to. And by and by, when I was calmer I could tell Mother all about it.

And I did.

I told her how hard I tried to be Mary all the way up to Andersonville and after I got there; and how then I found out, all of a sudden one day, that father had got ready for Marie, and he didn't want me to be Marie, and that was why he had got Cousin Grace and the automobile and the geraniums in the window, and, oh, everything that made it nice and comfy and honey. And then is when they bought me the new white dresses and the little white shoes. And I told Mother, of course, it was lovely to be Marie, and I liked it, only I knew she would feel bad to think, after all her pains to make me Mary, father didn't want me Mary at all.

"I don't think you need to worry—about that," stammered Mother. "But, tell me, why—why did your father want you to be Marie and not Mary?"

And then I told her how he said he'd remembered what I'd said to him in the parlor that day—how tired I got being Mary, and how I'd put on Marie's things just to get a little vacation from her; and he said he'd never forgotten. And so when it came near time for me to come again, he determined to fix it so I wouldn't have to be Mary at all. And so that was why. And I told Mother it was all right, and of course I liked it; only it did mix me up awfully, not knowing which wanted me to be Mary now, and which Marie, when they were both telling me different from what they ever had before. And that it was hard, when you were trying just the best you knew how.

And I began to cry again.

And she said there, there, once more, and patted me on my shoulder, and told me I needn't worry any more. And that she understood it, if I didn't. In fact, she was beginning to understand a lot of things that she'd never understood before. And she said it was very, very dear of Father to do what he did; and that I needn't worry about her being displeased at it. That she was pleased, and that she believed he meant her to be. And she said I needn't think any more whether to be Mary or Marie; but to be just a good, loving little daughter to both of them; and that was all she asked, and she was very sure it was all Father would ask, too.

I told her then how I thought he did care a little about having me there, and that I knew he was going to miss me. And I told her why—what he'd said that morning in the junction—about appreciating love, and not missing things or people until you didn't have them; and how he'd learned his lesson, and all that.

And Mother grew all flushed and rosy again, but she was pleased. I knew she was. And she said some beautiful things about making other people happy, instead of looking to ourselves all the time, just as she had talked once, before I went away. And I felt again that hushed, stained-window, soft-music, everybody-kneeling kind of a way; and I was so happy! And it lasted all the rest of that evening till I went to sleep.

And for the first time a beautiful idea came to me, when I thought how Mother was trying to please Father, and he was trying to please her. Wouldn't it be perfectly lovely and wonderful if Father and Mother should fall in love with each other all over again, and get married? I guess then this would be a love story all right, all right!

OCTOBER

Oh, how I wish that stained-window, everybody-kneeling feeling would last. But it never does. Just the next morning, when I woke up, it rained. And I didn't feel pleased a bit. Still I remembered what had happened the night before, and a real glow came over me at the beautiful idea I had gone to sleep with.

I wanted to tell Mother, and ask her if it couldn't be, and wouldn't she let it be, if Father would, so, without waiting to dress me, I hurried across the hall to her room and told her all about it—my idea, and everything.

But she said, "Nonsense," and, "Hush, hush," when I asked her if she and Father couldn't fall in love all over again and get married. And she said not to get silly notions into my head. And she wasn't a bit flushed and tony, as she had been the night before, and she didn't talk at all as she had then, either. And it's been that way ever since. Things have gone along in just the usual humdrum way, and she's never been the same as she was that night I came.

Something—a little different—did happen yesterday, though. There's going to be another big astronomy meeting here in Boston this month, just as there was when Father found Mother years ago; and Grandfather brought home word that Father was going to be one of the chief speakers. And he told Mother he supposed she'd go and hear him.

"Well, yes, I am thinking of going," she said, just as calm and cool as could be. "When does he speak, Father?"

And when Aunt Hattie pooh-poohed, and asked how could she do such a thing, Mother answered:

"Because Charles Anderson is the father of my little girl, and I think she should hear him speak. Therefore, Hattie, I intend to take her."

And then she asked Grandfather again when Father was going to speak. I'm so excited! Only think of seeing my father up on a big platform with a lot of big men, and hearing him speak! "And he'll be the very smartest and handsomest one there, too. You see if he isn't!"

TWO WEEKS AND ONE DAY LATER

Father's here—right here in Boston. I don't know when he came. But the first day of the meeting was day before yesterday, and he was here then.

BEFORE BABY COMES

Watchful Care of Health Necessary
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a
Marvelous Help

West Orange, N. J.—"I was very nervous and upset for six months before my baby was born. One of my friends told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it for five months now. I have a big boy who weighed almost nine pounds at birth and I do all my housework and don't feel a bit nervous or upset any more. I still take your medicine and have told all my friends what good it has done me."

Mrs. MARGARET GREGORY, 440 Valley Road, West Orange, N. J.

West New York, N. J.—"The first two months I carried my baby I was in bed almost every day with sick headaches. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the first bottle helped me. I took seven more and I know I couldn't feel better than I did. The headaches stopped and I was able to do my own work. I have a baby girl six months old who weighs twenty pounds and is the picture of health."

Mrs. J. McCoy, 207 20th St., West New York, N. J.

Nervous and Run-Down
Biloxi, Miss.—"Just a word of praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with wonderful results before my baby was born. I was so nervous and run-down that I was a wreck of misery. I had pains in my sides and back so bad that I could not stay still or sleep nights. My husband was reading your 'ad.' in the paper and I decided to try your Vegetable Compound. After I had taken half a bottle I felt a change and was soon as well as ever. I took it the whole time, and I recommend it to every woman who is suffering as I was. People said that because I was so young I would never pull through and I praise your Vegetable Compound for my good health."

Mrs. E. KNOX J. STEVENS, 889 Fayard St., Biloxi, Miss.

Chicago, Ill.—"I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all prospective mothers. I suffered from weakness and faint spells and had to lie down twice a day for an hour or so before I could go on with my work. My cousin, who lives in Wisconsin, has used your Vegetable Compound for over five years and she came to us for a visit and she recommended it to me, saying she would pay for the bottle if it did not help me. I took that bottle and got it, and I found it gave me great relief. I recommend it to my friends and sisters and am willing for you to use these facts to help others."

Mrs. I. J. KUENSKI, 1213 W. 17th St., Chicago, Illinois.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken by expectant mothers. It will assist them in keeping well and strong. This is necessary not only for their own comfort but for the future as well.

It helped these women. It has helped many others.

NO HIT, NO RUN GAME PLAYED YESTERDAY; FAUVER PITCHED IT

It isn't only in the big leagues that no-hit, no-run games are pulled off. Fauver pitching for the West Side M. E. C. I. C. team against the Presbyterians yesterday in the Community Service Sunday School League performed that feat. His record was marred only by two bases on balls and one error, but he more than made up for them by banging out two home runs in addition to his pitching feat, striking out twelve men in the six innings. The only inning in which the Presbyterians had men on bases was the first and fifth. A double play, Fauver to Shaw to Lansberry, stopped the rally in the fifth. For the Presbyterians Kramer pitched the first four innings striking out four men and giving two bases on balls. Roseberry pitched the last two innings, striking out three men and giving two bases on balls. Both were hit hard, Johnson making two three baggers and Thompson one, in addition to Fauver's two home runs.

LA FOLLETTE MAKES ATTACK ON SUPREME COURT NAMING TAFT

Declares Highest Court
Instead of Congress Is
Ruling Power In Address To Federation.

ASSUMED POWERS

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 14.—Asserting that the Supreme Court of the United States is now the actual ruler of the American People Senator La Follette in a speech to the American Federation of Labor convention proposed the passage of a constitutional amendment giving Congress the right to nullify any decision of the high tribunal. The Supreme Court has assumed a power over the laws and public policies of the country which the framers of the constitution never intended it to have. I believe this question of judicial usurpation is now the supreme issue. La Follette declared in his speech which was full of attacks on the Court for its decisions hostile to labor. The Senator said he would seek the support of the labor and farmer vote for his amendment. He turned his attack particularly upon Chief Justice William H. Taft. He said Taft had been repudiated by the voters of the United States, that he could not be elected to the high office which he holds and yet by reason of the position he holds he wrote the opinion in the Coronado Coal Co. case and other decisions hostile to labor.

WORKMAN'S CASH GROCERIES WILL INVADE MAIN LINE

With Opening Of Store
At Johnstown, Mgr.
Thurston Announces
Plans For The Future.

AIM IS 100 STORES

The Workman's Cash Grocery Company, the more link to their rapidly increasing chain Store No. 16 will be opened sometime this month at Johnstown, Pa. This will be their first store along the main line. It is their intention to open several more stores in Johnstown. Manager Thurston says that he expects to put stores all along the main line from Pittsburgh to Harburg and does not intend to stop until he has one hundred stores.

This company has their own bakery, also building up their own warehouse from which all their stores will be supplied. This does away with the middle man's profit which means a saving which then customers will receive the benefit of. It is Mr. Thurston's desire to make their stores the best up to date stores and a place where it will be a pleasure for the customers to do their shopping. His intention is to help it to be pleasant and courteous to everyone and whatever they do not overlook or neglect the children. He feels that when children come into the store to shop for their mother, they are sent there with instructions to get what they want and hurry home, he always says that mother has confidence in the clerk or manager of that store or she would not send her children there. For this reason he says it is the duty of any clerk in any store to give the best possible attention to the children. Mr. Thurston can be found nearly every day at his office over the Pittman Store, from seven thirty A. M. to five thirty P. M. and he would appreciate it very much if anyone who has a complaint to make would either call on him personally or by phone, and it will have his best attention.

Let us all join in wishing the Workman's Cash Grocery Co. the best of luck in opening up along the main line.

LENINE III. BUT NOT NEAR DEATH AS WAS REPORTED

Berlin, Germany, June 14.—Control of Soviet Russia is passing into the hands of triumvirate, as did Franco in the days of the revolution, according to Freilicht, Nicola Lenin, no longer the active and keen witted dictator is turning over the reins of Bolshevism to three leaders, Kaminitoff, Klov and Stalin, it is stated. The Soviet Premier is not actually at the point of death, as has been stated but is compelled by his physical condition to leave Moscow for six months, for a complete rest.

HOW TO TREAT OUR FLAG

Flag Day is at hand and, once more the etiquette of the flag becomes important in thousands of towns and cities. To help dispel many uncertainties, The American Legion Weekly, published in the issue of August 6, 1921, a page of illustrations and rules. This page has been used as a text in many communities, and because so many requests have been received for the issue in which it appears, it is reproduced below.

The Rules in Brief

The man who is in uniform salute in military style when the flag goes by, but when in civies the best form is to take off the hat and hold it against the left shoulder. In draping the colors the simplest rule to remember is that the Stars and Stripes always claim the place of honor, the forefront, the right or the highest elevation. Another rule is that the colors should never be allowed to touch the ground or the deck.

Don'ts

Don't sew the flag onto a sofa pillow.

Don't use it as a silk handkerchief.

Don't twist it into fantastic designs.

Don't use it in any form of advertising.

Don't let it drag in the dust in handling it.

LAD OF SIX HOOKS FOUR POUND TROUT; DADDY LANDS HIM

William Grubb, six year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grubb, of Bellefonte is proudly strutting about these days for being a champion fisherman.

The other day with his father he was fishing in Spring creek. Unexpectedly, he felt an awful tug on his rod and line. He was almost pulled into the stream.

Then Dad came to his assistance and landed a monster trout, a speckled beauty that measured 23 1/2 inches and weighed 4 1/2 pounds.

Dad then caught a big sucker but his son would not be beaten, and, in turn also landed a sucker.

CORRECT USE OF THE FLAG

The flag should be raised at sunrise and lowered at sunset. It may be raised at other times, but should never be left out at night, except when it is under fire of an enemy.

On Memorial Day, the flag should be displayed at half mast from sunrise until noon, and at the peak from noon until sunset.

In raising the flag to half-staff or half-mast, it should always be run to the peak and then lowered one breadth of the flag. In retiring, it should first be run back to the peak and then retired. It should never be allowed to touch the ground.

When the "Star-Spangled Banner" is played or sung, stand and remain standing, in silence, until finished.

When the flag is passing on parade or in review, if you are walking, halt; if sitting, rise, stand at attention and remove your hat.

The flag should never be worn as whole or part of a costume. As a badge it should be worn over the left breast.

In decorating, the flag should never be festooned or draped. Always hung flat.

If hung so stripes are horizontal, Union should be in the left upper corner.

If hung perpendicular, Union should be in the right upper corner.

When the national flag and another flag fly from the same pole, there should be double halyards one for each flag.

The flag should never be allowed below a person sitting.

When carried in parade or when crossed with other flags, the Stars and Stripes should always be at right.

When the flag is used in unveiling a statue or monument, it should not be allowed to fall to the ground, but should be carried aloft to wave out, forming a distinctive feature during the remainder of the ceremony.

When the flag is placed over a bier or casket the blue field should be at the head.

As an altar covering, the Union should be at the right, as you face the altar, and nothing should be placed upon the flag, except the Holy Bible.

The flag should never be reversed except in case of distress at sea.

Published at request of Moshannon Chapter, D. A. R.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Hile and family left today on a motor trip which will take them to Washington and other places of interest near the nation's capital.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 14.—Due to the appearance of thousands of forged whiskey permits, physicians have been notified to return their books containing prescription blanks to the office of the Prohibition Director in Philadelphia. The forged permits were found in examining the records of drug stores here.

ALL IS READY FOR OBSERVANCE OF FLAG DAY AT COURT HOUSE THIS EVENING; OLD GLORY WAVES FROM EVERY HOUSE

Children Will Assemble At The High School,
From Where They Will March In A Body
To Court House Corner—Leave Your Car
On The Side Streets Please.

LEGION BAND WILL SERVE THE MUSIC

SCHOOL CHILDREN

Assemble at the High School at seven o'clock on Wednesday evening to take part in the celebration of Flag Day. If you have a flag, bring it with you. If not one will be furnished to you. But come, take part in singing the patriotic songs you have learned in your schools and lead the community in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

The Progress publishes the words of the Oath of Allegiance to the Flag which will be used at the conclusion of the exercises in the Court House Square this evening, as well as the words of the national songs that will be sung so that every person may have a copy to take with them to the exercises, which begins at 7:15. Cut them out now and be able to take your part in this service of respect to our Flag.

The Pledge of Allegiance is the one used by the school children and is as follows:

"I pledge allegiance to my Flag and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

AMERICA

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing;
Land where my fathers died,
Land of the pilgrims' pride,
From ev'ry mountain side
Let freedom ring.

Our fathers' God, to Thee,
Author of liberty,
To Thee we sing:
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light;
Protect us by thy might,
Great God, our King.

COLUMBIA, THE GEM OF THE OCEAN

O Columbia! The gem of the ocean,
The home of the brave and the free,
The shrine of each patriot's devotion,
A world offers homage to thee.
Thy mandates make heroes assemble,
When Liberty's form stands in view
Thy banners make tyranny tremble,

A. B. REED WILL ADDRESS ROTARY CLUB

The regular weekly meeting of the Rotary Club will be held at the Hotel Jordan Thursday evening, A. B. Reed will be the speaker.

D. H. Barnett, of Olanta, was a Clearfield visitor today.

Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue.

Chorus
Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue,
Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue,
Thy banners make tyranny tremble,
Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue.

"Old Glory" to greet now comes lither,
With eyes full of love to the brim,
May the wreaths of our heroes ne'er wither,
Not a star in our banner grow dim;
May the service united ne'er sever,
But they to our colors prove true!
The Army and Navy forever,
Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue.

Chorus

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER.
Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd, were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.

Chorus
Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

Oh, thus be it ever when freemen shall stand
Between their lov'd homes and wild war's desolation;
Blest with vict'ry and peace may the heav'n rescued land
Praise the Pow'r that hath made and preserved us a nation.

Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust!"

Chorus
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

HEY! YOU RED MEN

Your trifle is going to have a real ball-team this season and a practice is called for Friday evening. You fellows who can play ball or who think you can, report at the park early in the evening for a strenuous session. Bob McBlain is out for center field and invites competition.

Climbing Higher Than Man Has Ever Gone Before.

To reach the peak of Mt. Everest has been man's ambition for many years. Three Englishmen, Mallory, Somerville and Norton, have gone 28,800 feet, farther than man has ever gone before, without artificial supply of oxygen. They are just 2200 feet below the summit, ready to advance with tanked oxygen. This photo was taken as the expedition crossed the snow barren at Jolly La.

THURSDAY, JUNE 29, IS KIDDIES' DAY AT THE CLEARFIELD DRIVING PARK

Elks Making Even Greater Preparations Than Last Year—When Thousands Of Little Folks Were Royally Treated.

The local Elks Lodge will give their annual treat to the kiddies of Clearfield on June 29th. The occasion is known as Kiddies Day and will be staged at the Clearfield Driving Park, where all the kids of the community regardless of age, sex, color or creed are expected to be present to enjoy the program and good things set before them by this great American fraternal organization.

Great preparations are being made for this occasion and when June 29th arrives everything will be ready for the biggest time Clearfield Kiddies have ever seen. When you recall the huge success of this function last year you'll have some idea of what a real task Clearfield Elks have set for themselves.

Several thousand little folks were entertained to their heart's content last year without accident of any kind and the Elks will attempt to equal that safety record while far eclipsing last year's entertainment record.

This is more or less congestion in different refreshment stands and enters last year and some jostling and crowding before the little folks had their fill. Even that discomfort will be done away with this year as a coupon system has been devised which will eliminate all danger of one fellow getting the other fellow's share. But we have promised the Elks to tell you more about the big time in later issues and we are going to stop now, but whatever you do, don't forget that Thursday, June 29th is Elks Kiddies Day in Clearfield. You know what that means.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR BABY WELL

Baby's Nightclothing

Baby's night gowns are very satisfactory if made of single stockinette. For a very young baby winter night gowns may be drawn up at the feet with a string that is run through the hem. But for older babies, garments made with feet are better.

In winter you may have a sleeping bag for the baby, made of any woolen material, preferably a soft blanket. You may use a single blanket folded in the middle crosswise. Sew it together on one end and one side and fasten the top in two places some inches apart with hooks and eyes. The baby sets inside this blanket.

If you use such a sleeping bag for your baby you will save yourself much worry as to whether your baby has kicked his covers off during the night.

Shoes and Stockings

Keep the legs and feet of the young baby very warm.

Be sure to feel his feet often and if they are cold use some sort of foot wrappings as soon as he begins to walk.

A mixture of wool and linen stockings are best, and in the long run most economical. Others of wool and cotton or of wool and silk may be used. Have about three pairs of the second size. These may be washed out quickly and dried on stocking stretchers. Short booties, particularly of the knitted type may be worn when your baby is taken out doors in the winter time. When the baby begins enough. But he will need shoes and buckskin are best.

covering in addition to the skirts and faced shoes are best, as they support baby's ankles. Patent leather is not good material to choose for baby's shoes. Dull leather, which is soft and warm weather if his feet feel warm blankets.

to walk buy him shoes with firm soles. In cold weather leggings and over shoes are necessary for the baby who is old enough to walk outdoors. Have an older boy can go barefooted in your baby's shoes loose and long enough to avoid crowding the toes.

In shape the shoes should follow the outline of the baby's foot.

WILLIAM H. NECOMMER

William H. Necommer was born in Cumberland County, Pa., nearly 85 years ago, spending most of his life in Mahaffey and vicinity. He was buried from his late home in Greenwood Township, Tuesday afternoon, May 30. Rev. B. Hilbish of the Mahaffey Methodist church had charge of the funeral. A large number of his friends gathered at his late home to pay their last respects. He was laid to rest in the Mahaffey Cemetery. Mr. Necommer was married to Miss Mali a Bloom on May 2nd, 1858. Of this union ten children were born, two of whom are deceased: Mrs. Clara Sunderland and Mrs. Sadie Kester. The widow, Mrs. Necommer and eight children mourn their loss. Max P., of Clearfield.

TROUBLE BREWS IN BROWNSVILLE OVER STARTING OF MINES

Brownsville, Pa., June 14.—Guards in the coal mining towns along the Monongahela River were increased today owing to the tense situation created by reports that operators planned to resume in full with strike breakers. Hundreds of eviction notices have been served on striking miners, many to be operative before the week ends. Many of the strikers are seeking shelter with friends and the house they are forced to vacate are at once occupied by strike breakers. Over two hundred eviction notices were enforced last week and three hundred are to be made effective this week. The hatred against strike breakers broke out here last night when three hundred miners attacked non-union miners. The strikers laid in wait for 50 strike breakers expected to arrive on an early train. When the non-union miners appeared the mob broke into a yell and pursued three of the men through the principal streets of Brownsville. The men sought shelter in a moving picture theatre. The proprietor of the theatre was forced to give up the men who were badly beaten and told to get out of town.

The "Mother Ship"

Like a great "mother ship" carrying supplies for a squadron of destroyers or submarines, so the far-reaching Atlantic system of tank-trucks, pumps and storage stations stands out as an ever present, ever ready source of supply for gasoline-needy motorists.

No other gasoline surpasses Atlantic in quality and dependability. None is more scientifically fitted to the requirements of present-day motors.

But that isn't all. No other gasoline in the State has behind it a distributing organization that even approaches the Atlantic system in scope and thoroughness.

All of which means that when you buy Atlantic you get gasoline which not only is always right, always uniform, but always OBTAINABLE—three vital essentials to maximum carburetor efficiency and the consistently smooth, full-powered operation of any motor.

ALL WRONG

Look for the cause of backache. To be cured you must know the cause.

If it's weak kidneys you must get the kidneys working right.

A Clearfield resident tells you how.

F. R. Waple, 422 W. Front St., says: "I was troubled with a bad pain in the small of my back which caused me a lot of distress. I also had severe headaches and a lame and tired feeling all over. I purchased a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and found them to do me a lot of good from the start. Two boxes of this medicine cured me up in fine shape. Since then, when I have had an attack of that kind, I have used Doan's and have always found them to bring good results."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Waple had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Eunice Kline has returned from Lynchburg, Virginia, where she attended the Commencement Exercises of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, her daughter, Athalia, being a member of this year's graduating class.

Miss Athalia Kline, who graduated from Randolph-Macon Woman's College last week will spend the summer at her home on Locust Street.

Roofs Thatched But Town is Modern. In the thatched-roof homes of Tacloban, on the little Philippine island of Layte, the electrical idea shines brightly every night, for most of these homes are electrically lighted, and the town, with a population of 12,000, has its electric light and power plant with three 22½ kilowatt generators. The streets are bright at night.

Human Vanity in Buying. Ostrich feather fans, priced in one New York establishment at $150, may be had at another place only a few blocks away for $30. The fans are bought at identical prices in the same wholesale establishment. Because of human vanity, the proprietor of a store which sells to one class of people could no more dare to charge too little than another would dare to charge too much, writes Fred Kelly in The Nation's Business. The woman who pays $30 for a feather fan in an unimportant shop might not be willing to pay much more than that; but the woman who deliberately goes to the most expensive store in town might feel only contempt for the establishment if she found luxury articles there priced within the pocket-book range of the masses.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

The first American automobile, built and run by Elwood Haynes in Kokomo, Ind., in 1893, is to be loaned by the Smithsonian Institute for the Fourth of July celebration in the Indiana town. The inventor was arrested on Michigan Avenue in 1895 for starting horses and "endangering human life" with his "panting locomotive."

Judge Joseph Sabath, who has heard over 6,500 divorce cases in two years of his Chicago incumbency, advises young people to marry because he has found that the misunderstandings of youth are easier to adjust than the bitterness of older couples.

America is fast becoming a milk drinking nation. In 1921 every man, woman and child in the United States consumed an average of 49 gallons of milk, or nearly a gallon a week per capita. In 1920 the per capita consumption was 43 gallons.

The department of agriculture has been delving in dairy farm statistics to ascertain just how much cream and milk the 25,061,000 cows produced last year and its distribution.

Production of whole milk, which includes milk and cream, for household purposes in 1921 was 45,153,000,000 pounds, 5,000,000,000 pounds in excess of 1920. The whole milk represents 46 per cent of the total quantity produced. Butter, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk, ice cream and other products consumed 46,488,403,000 pounds.

When the United States takes up a new idea, an improvement in machinery, travel, comfort, convenience, pleasure or aught else in these lines, it goes into it in a thorough, wholehearted way that leads the world.

We do not dip just tentatively—we plunge.

We are not afraid of a new thing; we are unhampered by conservatism; we are free spenders; we are not timid about junking the old good for a new better.

Nothing long remains the exclusive possessions of the rich. No matter how high the initial cost, American invention, ingenuity and enterprise succeed in reducing it by cheap editions for popular consumption.

Six months ago the radio was a baby idea, now it has outgrown man-size clothes as a big industry.

We invented moving pictures and we lead the world in the size of our audiences.

We invented the telephone and we out-talk through a mouthpiece all other nations.

We invented the phonograph and cheapened its price to fit the smallest purse.

We invented most of the agricultural machines. The full list trails far out into the perspective.

We did not invent the automobile but we own 83 per cent of the motor vehicles, exclusive of motorcycles and tractors in the world. We possess 10 million out of the world's 12 million. Every two families in the United States, on the average, owns an automobile or an auto truck.

THE FLAG OF AMERICA

Today is one for rededication in loyalty to the flag of the United States and to all that it represents. The flag is but a symbol, but unless there be reverence for the symbol there can be little for the Thing Itself.

Some today need no urging to pay tender homage to the flag. They are those who have sacrificed for it, suffered for it. Its white is their idealism, its blue is their loyalty, its red is their blood. They are the flag.

Tribute will be paid to the flag today in words of warmth and eloquence. But words can never be as eloquent as the flag itself. It speaks a language of its own that men of every tongue and every race can understand. Its language is the universal language. It is a language of noble nouns and mighty verbs, and no adjectives.

Tribute will be paid to the flag today in deeds, not so heroic, perhaps, as some past, but humble and sincere. Tribute of deeds the flag will understand, for the flag is the spirit of deeds—deeds spectacular and obscure, romantic and stoic, many great deeds and a multitude of simple deeds.

Says Carlyle: "The only convincing evidence of a man's sincerity is that he gives himself for a principle, words, money, all things else are comparatively easy to give away, but when a man makes a gift of his daily life and practice it is plain that the Truth, whatever it may be, has taken possession of him." The flag is aloft today because America has bred such men.

Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, handed a bit of typically Rooseveltian advice to members of the graduating class of Annapolis Naval Academy that others as well can apply to their lives with much profit.

"Lead lives," he said, "so people will swear by, not at you. Members of the class who accept this advice literally will not regret it. Others there will be probably who will wish they had."

No man is successful unless he has followers who "swear by him." There is something awry about the character of the man who is more oft sworn at than by. He is forgotten the day after he is taken to the cemetery.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL DEVELOPMENT
SETTING THE PACE IN PENNSYLVANIA

A striking evidence of how effectively education is functioning in Pennsylvania is furnished by the Department of Public Instruction through the report of the Director of Junior High School. The development of these schools has been rather remarkable and shows that in this field, as in so many others, Pennsylvania is leading the way. The report shows that there are 52 such schools in successful operation with an attendance of 30,935 divided as follows:

| District | No. No. Students |
|----------|------------------|
| City     | 25 26,600        |
| Borough  | 13 2,550         |
| Rural    | 14 1,785         |

In addition, 54 schools are in process of organization and will be opened next year under the following distribution:

| District | No. No. Students |
|----------|------------------|
| City     | 12 16,506        |
| Borough  | 21 6,675         |
| Rural    | 21 3,755         |

From these figures it will be seen that next year there will be 37 Junior High Schools in operation in cities, 34 in boroughs and 35 in rural communities, having a total enrollment of about 68,000.

A most interesting feature of this report is the fact that the rural communities have more such schools than the boroughs and almost as many as the cities. The report further states that the broader field of experience which these schools provide is keeping a larger number of boys and girls in school. In districts where records have been kept, officials report that 35 per cent to 40 per cent more students have continued in attendance through the agency of the Junior High School.

The ideal of the Department of Public Instruction is the 6-3-3 plan. That this is making rapid advances is seen in the numerous building programs now in operation throughout the state. Of the bond issues carried at the recent election nearly all had provisions for Junior High Schools.

Scale Committee Of Hard Coal Miners Reject The Operators' Proposal

New York, N. Y., June 14.—The general scale committee of the United Mine Workers of America today rejected a proposal of Anthracite coal operators to submit their differences to a tribunal selected by President Harding, but left the way open for a settlement by submitting counter proposals. The miners' committee demands: First, the eight hour day; second, complete recognition of the union; third, that existing rates of pay be taken as a starting point for future deliberations, so that the mine workers may be assured a living or saving wage.

BUG DOES $72,500,000 DAMAGE TO FORESTS IN NORTHWEST

THE GREAT ENEMY OF THE WESTERN PINE FORESTS, THE PINE BEETLE, AND PICTURE SHOWING HIM IN HIS ACTUAL SIZE.

By PHILIP J. SINNOTT

Klamath Falls, Ore., June 13.—War to the death is being waged on the Western Pine Beetle, which has done $72,500,000 damage to forests in the northwest in 10 years.

Federal and State Governments are co-operating with private owners of timber lands in an extensive campaign. They are spurred to every effort by fear that the beetle may spread from its present location and destroy the large body of western pine in America.

Large stretches of the Black Hills forest in the Dakotas were swept entirely clear of western pine before control methods were devised.

The threatened timber belt is estimated at one-sixth of the standing western pine on the earth's surface. It extends from central Oregon into central California.

Pine, of the most used varieties of lumber, is becoming scarcer every year.

An area of 1,200,000 acres, contain-beetles.

Northward Flow of Bees.

Mainly rivers flow north for part of their course, but because most of the rivers of the central part of the United States are tributaries of the Mississippi and because of the wide shape of the continent, not many rivers have a general northerly course. The principal rivers which flow north are: Champlain, St. Lawrence, Ottawa, St. Mary's, Kootenai, and the Snake. The Snake river, Kootenai river in part and St. Joseph river.

HESSIAN FLY HARMS WINTER WHEAT CROP

Infestation Regarded as Worst in Many Years.

Where Parasite Is Present in Large Numbers Crop Should Be Plowed Under, as It Will Not Amount to Anything.

A prevalence of Hessian fly is reported in winter wheat sections and, judging from samples received from many areas, the infestation is the worst for several years.

Favorable climatic conditions, coupled with an absence of a parasite that ordinarily destroys the larvae of the Hessian fly and too early planting of the wheat last fall, is the cause of the outbreak. Where wheat was sown early it needs to be carefully examined for traces of the fly.

Signs of the infestation may be detected by examining the wheat field.

Hessian Fly and Wheat—Insert Shows Adult Female, Greatly Enlarged.

If it has stunted plants upon which small brown seedlike bodies are attached to the stalks, the fly is probably present in the pupal or "dax seed" stage. These brown seedlike bodies can be found below the surface of the ground between the leaf sheath and the stem of the plant. Within a few weeks small goatlike flies hatch out, laying a second crop of eggs which result in the spring brood of flies.

The Hessian fly has four stages in its life. The egg, the maggot, the pupa and the fly. It is the maggot, a white, fleshy worm, about one-fifth of an inch long, that does the damage. If the plant survives the first attack there is a chance of considerable damage resulting from the second crop which eat the stems and cause the grain to lodge and lessen the grain production.

Wheat that is badly infested with the Hessian fly should be plowed under, and it will not amount to anything as a crop and will only serve as a breeding ground for further crops. Often some parts of the yield only are affected and the farmer may use his judgment as to turning under only a part of the field.

Where volunteer seedlings of last year's crop are detected containing Hessian fly they should be plowed under at once. If there are any suspicious signs of the presence of the fly in the fields the entomologists urge that samples be sent to the state entomologist for examination.

PLANS TO CONTROL EROSION

Gullies Cause of Considerable Loss by Washing Away Fertile Soil—Ways to Reclaim.

The gully is one of the things that keep rain from being an unmixed blessing to the farmer. That it is an inconvenience and causes damage is obvious, but in Farmers' Bulletin 1234, "Gullies—How to Control and Reclaim Them," by C. G. Chandler, first issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, it is shown that loss of soil produced in 10 different ways, and that the most important is the washing away of fertile soil that can never be returned.

After discussing the different types of gullies and their causes, the bulletin, which is illustrated with photographs and drawings, goes on to describe in detail methods of controlling erosion, such as plowing in and seeding, planting trees, and building dams of various kinds. By following the suggestions and plans farmers should be able to prevent further erosion in most cases and to reclaim badly gullied land. In some cases expensive structures such as concrete walls are needed, but usually inexpensive materials—brush, straw and stones—are recommended.

The bulletin may be obtained free of charge by addressing the department at Washington, D. C.

PLAN TO ERADICATE SORREL

About Simplest Way Is to Spray With Solution of Copperas—Quicklime Also Kills.

About the simplest way of killing sorrel, if you do not want to cultivate the land, is to spray it with a solution of copperas (sulphate of iron), made by dissolving two pounds of copperas to each gallon of water. Repeat the spraying as often as the sorrel begins to make growth. You can also kill this weed by staking quicklime in water and sprinkling the water and lime over the plants, repeating as often as necessary.

COURT NOTES

Suit was entered in Prothonotary Ralston's office yesterday by J. A. Gleason, Esq., representing Leon Bros., wholesale produce dealers of Buffalo, New York, who are suing Damus Bros., of DuBois, for $895.10, the price of a car load of fruit sold to George Tamer, of Altoona, on the order or guarantee of the DuBois people.

George Berger, by his attorney Boulton & Forsyth, began suit against Mrs. Crissie Laing and Roy Berger in an effort to establish his title to a lot in Blain City which he claims to have owned and paid taxes on for the past thirty-three years. Notwithstanding these facts he declares Mrs. Laing has sold the lot to Roy Berger and he brings this suit to establish his ownership and protect the property.

A. M. Liveright, Esq., representing the Wolf Clothing Co., of Pittsburgh also entered suit against H. Bender, of Chalmers in an effort to recover $139 said to be due for eight suits purchased by Bender from the Wolf Co.

CHARTER NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that an application will be made to the Governor of the State of Pennsylvania, on the 29th day of June, 1922, by J. H. ULLINGTON, AUO. P. E. S. COM. ANY, under the provisions of the incorporation amended Act of 1883, P. 2112, and its supplements, for the improvement, amendment and alteration of its character, the charter and object of which amendment is as follows:

Section two of the said original charter to be amended to read as follows:

"Said corporation is formed for the purpose of owning and operating motor vehicles and similar conveyances for the transportation, as common carriers, of persons, freight, merchandise, and other personal property therein, for hire, in the counties of Clearfield and Centre, and particularly between the following places: Borough of Clearfield, Borough of Trewinville, Borough of Grampian, Village of Luthersburg and the city of Harrisburg, and also between the Borough of Clearfield village of Woodland, in Bradford Township, village of Hagar in said Bradford Township, Borough of Wallacetown, village of Blue Ball in Boggs Township, Borough of Philadelphia in Centre County, over the following routes: over the streets of the Borough of Clearfield and also public road in Lawrence Township, which is an extension of Turnpike Avenue in said Borough of Clearfield; and over public roads between the Borough of Clearfield, Lawrence Township, Pike Township, Penn Township, Grampian Borough, and the Borough of Curwensville, Penn Township, Bloom Township, Brady Township, passing through the village of Luthersburg, Sandy Township and public streets of the City of Harrisburg; and over public roads in Lawrence Township and Bradford Township to and through the village of Woodland in said Bradford Township, and through the village of Wallacetown thence by public road through Bradford Township and Rogers Township to and through the village of Blue Ball in Boggs Township, thence by public road to the town of Philadelphia in Centre County and in the Borough of Philadelphia by the public streets thereof to the corner of Pennsylvania and Main Streets, and between such other points in the said counties or in one of them as such other points, or routes, as shall hereafter be approved by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and in support of the certificate, or certificates, of public convenience."

And for this purpose the undersigned and others all the rights, title and interest in the Act of Assembly, and its supplements, and the certificate, or certificates, of public convenience.

Old-Fashioned Barn raising At the Krine farm in Brady Township

An old-fashioned barn raising took place at the E. L. Krine farm, between Stanley and C. & M. Junction yesterday. In the neighborhood of 125 neighbors gathered for the big event and so earnestly did they work that the barn, a structure 60x64 feet, was all raised before the shades of night had fallen. But work was not all that the neighbors did. They participated in one of the finest country dinners that has been served in this section for some little time. The tables were spread out in the open and were laden with all of the good things in the way of "eats."

The barn that was raised yesterday replaces one that has done service for the past 65 years. The new structure will be modern in every respect.

PENN STATE COW, IN "MENTAL" TEST, PROVES A WONDER

State College, June 14.—A Penn State Cow broke a new kind of record today when Maid of the Hill, upon being admitted to a herd in the college dairy barn, learned to operate her new individual drinking fountain in two hours and 50 minutes. The barns of the Department of Dairy Husbandry at the Pennsylvania State

Escape Eight Month Jail Sentence On Promise To Leave County Quickly

William Laws and Obadiah Jackson the colored Lotharios who got into an altercation down in Wrigley Addition several Sundays ago and who were convicted at May Court of attempting to carve each other up and had since been in jail, were called before Judge Bell Monday for sentence.

After detailing briefly the circumstances of the occurrence, as adduced at the trial, Judge Bell sentenced each fellow to pay $25 fine and costs and serve eight months in jail. He then informed them that their room was much more desirable than their company in this neck of woods in the future and told them that he would parole them by giving them 48 hours in which to say their adieus and forever bid good bye to Clearfield. The gentlemen accepted the condition and have departed hence.

On Osculation.

We are reliably informed that the Society for the Suppression of Human Emotions has put an official ban on kissing. Kissing, says an advance fact, is dangerous. Infection lies in kissing; kissing is immoral; kissing is more frequently idiotic than not, and in any event kissing causes a lot of trouble. Yeah, brothers, yeah! . . . at between us, for all the trouble kissing causes, we find it's worth it.—Leonard Times-Dispatch.

Origin of Weather, Cocks

By a pupal enunciation made in the middle of the Ninth century, the figure of a cock was set up on every church steeple as the emblem of St. Peter. This is the origin of weather cocks.

College have been equipped with a sanitary fountain for each cow, and upon the admission of a new animal to the fold, the chief herdsman becomes, for the moment, an animal trainer teaching the newcomer to use his utensils for eating and drinking.

Generally it takes about a day for a cow to learn that she can get a drink by lifting the cover from her fountain and pressing the bottom of the bowl to start the flow of water. But Maid of the Hill passed her "month test" more quickly. In less than three hours she had mastered all her lessons and was admitted as a member in good standing, to the gratification of the many visiting farmers here for the June Farmers' week.

Sanitary appliances in the dairy department of the Pennsylvania State College and the methods employed in the preparation and shipment of milk have given the college a high place among the producers of milk of low bacterium percentage.

FARMERS POUR INTO STATE COLLEGE FOR BIG FARMERS' WEEK

State College, Pa., June 14.—More than 600 farmers from all parts of Pennsylvania have reached State College to attend the opening meeting of the fourth annual June Farmers' Week tonight, when State Secretary of Agriculture Fred Rasmussen and Dean R. L. Watts of the School of Agriculture will greet the visitors. Indications point to an attendance surpassing that of last year when over 4000 were present. In spite of the demands of farm work during this season of the year, farmers show an increased tendency to learn of the work that the School of Agriculture and Experiment Station are doing. They also show great interest in Penn State's university development plan and the raising of funds by potato growers for a new hospital at the college.

From the number that have arrived for the opening session, it is expected that the number of visitors will exceed 5000. Many of the farmers come to the college for but one day's program, returning to their homes at the close of the last afternoon demonstration. Very often the impressions and the ideas that they carry back with them serve to untangle some particularly difficult problem with which they must come in their farm work.

The 300 club members and vocational school pupils had another busy day today preparing for the Pennsylvania contest tomorrow morning. Several attractive trophies have been donated for award, and in addition each contestant is spurred on with the ambition of earning a place on the state team that is to represent Pennsylvania in several inter-state contests that are to be held later in the year. Enthusiasm runs high in all of the county camps.

LYNCHING MOB IN MICHIGAN BEATEN BY TEAR BOMBS

Jackson, Mich., June 14.—A mob of three thousand attempting to storm the Jackson jail and get possession of George Straub, ex-convict, who confessed murdering Miss Alice Mallett, was dispersed early today by tear gas bombs hurled into the town by deputies. Miss Mallett, matron of the Crittenden Home was found slain and her body brutally mutilated with an axe, on June 9th. Straub was under suspicion from the first. His full confession was made public last night and the street near the jail was soon filled with a mob of citizens demanding vengeance. Straub was wrapped in a dark cloak, hurried into an automobile and taken away to a neighboring town by county officials. The mob refused to believe at first that Straub was no longer in the jail and a committee was appointed which searched the building.

Greatness and Lowliness.

It is dangerous to show man too plainly how like he is to the animals, without, at the same time, reminding him of his greatness. It is equally unwise to impress him with his greatness and not with his lowliness. It is worse to leave him in ignorance of both. But it is very profitable to recognize the two facts.

VISITORS' DAY AT BOY SCOUT CAMP WILL BE TOMORROW

Troop No. 4 of the local Boy Scouts who went into camp at Camp McPherson Monday morning are reported to be having a high old time.

Camp Director Warren decided the past two mornings were a bit too chilly to order the lads into Montgomery for the usual morning plunge. The plunge was made optional with the gang on Tuesday morning. Just two of the "hardboiled gang" qualified for the polar bear class and dove beneath the icy waters.

Tony Angelo, the new cook, was voted "somech of" before the first day in camp was over and "mess call" continues to grow in popularity as each meal time approaches.

Tomorrow is visitors day and the boys would like to have all their friends come up and see them in their "wild state." If you happen to have a watermelon or two in your pockets why just take them along they will be as welcome as the flow ers in May.

Varnishing Airplanes.

It is reported that the type of the airplane industry is more dangerous to workers than the actual work of flying the finished machines. The industry is now in a state of panic. The only safe place to go to is the bank.

Commercialites Will Observe Ladies' Night Monday At Dimeling

A well attended meeting of the Board of Directors of the Commercial Club was held last evening at which plans and problems of the club for the ensuing six months were thoroughly discussed. With the development of the club in size and service the question of assuming new and larger duties and responsibilities is being agitated and needs to be wisely considered in the near future by the club as a whole. It was announced that the next meeting on Monday June 19th, would be "Ladies Night" and would be held in the Dimeling Ball room with the entertainment in charge of the new committee of which Cortes Bell is chairman. The program as arranged will give the members and their lady friends something to think or laugh about for days to come.

"They All Rejoice."

See where the sun, with face of insufferable splendor, goes swimming through the day; see where the soft and silver moon, with sheets of stars goes swimming through the night. What an eloquent silence! There they shine and move, perhaps wonderfully (cheer—hosts upon hosts), but there is no celebrating pomp of sounds, only an all-embracing pomp of silence—not a whisper, not a rustle, through all the vast dome. Our dimmed ears and hearts are soothed, our petty cares and excitements are hushed.—E. F. Rarr.

Brother Of Ward Must Tell All He Knows To Grand Jury Under Order

White Plains, N. Y., June 14.—Ralph D. Ward today was summoned before the grand jury to tell the inside story of the killing of Clarence Peters by his brother Walter S. Ward. District Attorney Weeks had secured from Justice Morchauer an order compelling Ralph to answer questions before the grand jury or go to jail. Ralph Ward is said to have learned from his father the facts of the shooting of Peters by Walter Ward. It is these facts that he is expected to reveal today. The elder Ward is now in Williamsport, Pa., and cannot be reached by a subpoena at this time.

CONFESSION OF POWELL IMPLICATES MRS. BRUNEN

Mount Holly, N. J., June 14.—A new confession of Charles Powell, confessed slayer of Honest John Brunen, led to the arrest of Mrs. Doris Brunen, wife of the slain showman, Ellis Parker, Burlington County Detective, announced today. Parker made this announcement after visiting Mrs. Brunen in the County jail here where she is not far removed from the cells occupied by Powell and Harry C. Mohr, brother of Mrs. Brunen, both of whom are named by Powell as accomplices. He made a statement that Mohr had hounded him into shooting Brunen with a sawed-off shot gun while seated beside a window in his home.

SPECIAL DRIVE DURING JUNE TO UNDERWRITE COLLEGE EDUCATIONS

UNIQUE CONTRACT WITH EDUCATIONAL AGREEMENT
ASSURES NECESSARY FUNDS

The month of June will be devoted by the representatives of the Equitable Life Assurance Society to a nation-wide campaign for underwriting college educations for America's boys and girls. The plan provides for a special contract on the life of either parent, issued while the prospective college student is a mere youngster. The contract at maturity is made payable in periodical installments over the usual college course of four years, beginning when the boy or girl reaches age.

If the parent on whose life the contract is based should die prematurely, the proceeds are kept intact, drawing interest ready for use of the son or daughter when college age is attained. Thus, whether a father lives or dies, such a contract will make certain the college education for the son or daughter.

Full particulars and details will be given by,

MARY MARIE

By Eleanor H. Porter

Illustrations by
R. H. Livingstone

SEPTEMBER

Well, vacation is over, and I go back to Boston tomorrow. It's been very nice and I've had a good time, in spite of being so mixed up as to whether I was Mary or Marie. It wasn't so bad as I was afraid it would be. Very soon after Father and I had that talk on the piazza, Cousin Grace took me down to the store and bought me two new white dresses, and the dearest little pair of shoes I ever saw. She said Father wanted me to have them.

And that's all—every single word that's been said about that Mary-and-Marie business. And even that didn't really say anything—not by name. And Cousin Grace never mentioned it again. And Father never mentioned it at all. Not a word.

Father's been queer. He's been awfully queer. Some days he's talked a lot with me—asked me questions just as he used to, all about what I did in Boston, and Mother, and the people that came there to see her, and everything. And he spoke of the violinist again, and, of course this time I told him all about him, and that he didn't come any more, nor Mr. Easterbrook, either; and Father was so interested!

Why, it seemed sometimes as if he just couldn't hear enough about things. Then, all of a sudden, at times, he'd get right up in the middle of something I was saying and act as if he was just waiting for me to finish my sentence so he could go. And he'd go, just as soon as I had finished my sentence. And after that, maybe, he wouldn't hardly speak to me again for a whole day.

And so that's why I say he's been so queer since that night on the piazza. But most of the time he's been lovely, perfectly lovely. And so has Cousin Grace. And I've had a beautiful time.

CHAPTER VIII

Which Is the Real Love Story.

BOSTON. FOUR DAYS LATER.

Well, here I am again in Boston. Mother and the rest met me at the station, and everybody seemed glad to see me, just as they did before. And I was glad to see them. But I didn't feel anywhere near so excited, and sort of crazy, as I did last year. I tried to, but I couldn't. I don't know why. Maybe it was because I'd been Marie all summer, anyway, so I wasn't so crazy to be Marie now, not needing any rest from being Marie. Maybe it was 'cause I sort of hated to leave Father.

And I did hate to leave him, especially when I found he hated to have me leave him. And he did. He told me so at the junction. He asked me had I been a little happier there with him this year than last; and he said he hoped I had.

And I told him, of course I had; that it had been perfectly beautiful there, even if there had been such a mix-up of him getting ready for Marie, and Mother sending Marie. And he laughed and looked queer—sort of half glad, and half sorry; and said he shouldn't worry about that. Then the train came, and we got on and rode down to the junction. And there, while we were waiting for the other train, he told me how sorry he was to have me go.

He said I never knew how he missed me after I went last year. He said you never knew how you missed things—and people—till they were gone. And I wondered if, by the way he said it, he wasn't thinking of Mother more than he was of me, and of her going long ago. And I told him I loved him dearly, and I had loved to be with him this summer, and that I'd stay his whole six months with him next year if he wanted me to.

He shook his head at that; but he did look happy and pleased, and said I'd never know how glad he was that I'd said that, and that he should prize it very highly—the love of his little daughter. He said you never knew how to prize love, either, till you'd lost it; and he said he'd learned his lesson, and learned it well. I knew then, of course, that he was thinking of Mother and the long ago. And I felt so sorry for him.

"But I'll stay—I'll stay the whole six months next year!" I cried again.

But again he shook his head.

"No, no, my dear; I thank you, and I'd love to have you; but it is much better for you that you stay in Boston through the school year, and I want you to do it. It'll just make the three months I do have you all the dearer, because of the long nine months that I do not." He went on very cheerfully and briskly; "and don't look so solemn and long-faced. You're not to blame for this wretched situation."

The train came then, and he put me on board, and he kissed me again—but I was expecting it this time, of course. Then I whizzed off, and he was left standing all alone on the platform. And I felt so sorry for him; and all the way down to Boston I kept thinking of him—what he said, and how he looked, and how fine and splendid and any-woman-would-be-proud-of him he was as he stood on the platform waving good-by.

And so I guess I was still thinking of him and being sorry for him when I got to Boston. That's why I couldn't be so crazy and hilariously glad when the folks met me. I suspect. Some way, all of a sudden, I found myself wishing he could be there, too.

Of course, I know that that was bad and wicked and unkind to Mother, and she'd feel so grieved not to have me satisfied with her. And I wouldn't have told her of it for the world. So I tried just as hard as I could to forget him—on account of Mother, so as to be loyal to her. And I did most forget him by the time I'd got home.

But it all came back again a little later when we were unpacking my trunk.

You see, Mother found the two new white dresses, and the dear little shoes. I knew then, of course, that she'd have to know all—mean, how she didn't please Father, even after all her pains trying to have me go as Marie.

"Why, Marie, what a world is this?" she demanded, holding up one of the new dresses.

I could have cried.

I suppose she saw by my face how awfully I felt 'cause she'd found it. And, of course, she saw something was the matter; and she thought it was—

Well, the first thing I knew she was looking at me in her very sternest, sorriest way, and saying:

"Oh, Marie, how could you? I'm ashamed of you! Couldn't you wear the Mary dresses one little three months to please your father?"

I did cry, then. After all I'd been through, to have her accuse me of getting those dresses! Well, I just couldn't stand it. And I told her so as well as I could, only I was crying so by now that I could hardly speak. I told her how it was hard enough to be Mary part of the time, and Marie part of the time, when I knew what they wanted me to be. But when she tried to have me Marie while he wanted Marie, and he tried to have me Marie while she wanted me Marie—I did not know what they wanted; and I wished I had never been born, unless I could have been born a plain little girl, or Bessie, or Annabelle, and not a Marie-Marie that was all mixed up!

And then I cried some more.

Mother dropped the dress then, and took me in her arms over on the couch, and she said, "There, there," and that I was tired and nervous, and all wrought up, and to cry all I wanted to. And by and by, when I was calmer I could tell Mother all about it.

And I did.

I told her how hard I tried to be Marie all the way up to Andersonville and after I got there; and how then I found out, all of a sudden one day, that father had got ready for Marie, and he didn't want me to be Marie, and that was why he had got Cousin Grace and the automobile and the geraniums in the window, and, oh, everything that made it nice and comfy and honey. And then is when they bought me the new white dresses and the little white shoes. And I told Mother, of course, it was lovely to be Marie, and I liked it, only I knew she would feel bad to think, after all her pains to make me Marie, father didn't want me Marie at all.

"I don't think you need to worry—about that," stammered Mother. "But, tell me, why—why did your father want you to be Marie and not Mary?"

And then I told her how he said he'd remembered what I'd said to him in the parlor that day—how tired I got being Marie, and how I'd put on Marie's things just to get a little vacation from her; and he said he'd never forgotten. And so when it came near time for me to come again, he determined to fix it so I wouldn't have to be Marie at all. And so that was why. And I told Mother it was all right, and of course I liked it; only it did mix me up awfully, not knowing which wanted me to be Marie now, and which Marie, when they were both telling me different from what they ever had before. And that it was hard, when you were trying just the best you knew how.

And I began to cry again.

And she said there, there, once more, and patted me on my shoulder, and told me I needn't worry any more. And that she understood it, if I didn't. In fact, she was beginning to understand a lot of things that she'd never understood before. And she said it was very, very dear of Father to do what he did; and that I needn't worry about her being displeased at it. That she was pleased, and that she believed he meant her to be. And she said I needn't think any more whether to be Marie or Marie; but to be just a good, loving little daughter to both of them; and that was all she asked, and she was very sure it was all Father would ask, too.

I told her then how I thought he did care a little about having me there, and that I knew he was going to miss me. And I told her why—what he'd said that morning in the junction—about appreciating love, and not missing things or people until you didn't have them; and how he'd learned his lesson, and all that.

And Mother grew all flushed and rosy again, but she was pleased. I knew she was. And she said some beautiful things about making other people happy, instead of looking to ourselves all the time, just as she had talked once, before I went away. And I felt again that hushed, stained-window, soft-music, everybody-kneeling kind of a way; and I was so happy! And it lasted all the rest of that evening till I went to sleep.

And for the first time a beautiful idea came to me, when I thought how Mother was trying to please Father, and he was trying to please her. Wouldn't it be perfectly lovely and wonderful if Father and Mother should fall in love with each other all over again, and get married? I guess then this would be a love story all right, all right!

OCTOBER

Oh, how I wish that stained-window, everybody-kneeling feeling would last. But it never does. Just the next morning, when I woke up, it rained. And I didn't feel pleased a bit. Still I remembered what had happened the night before, and a real glow came over me at the beautiful idea I had gone to sleep with.

I wanted to tell Mother, and ask her if it couldn't be, and wouldn't she let it be, if Father would, so, without waiting to dress me, I hurried across the hall to her room and told her all about it—my idea, and everything.

But she said, "Nonsense," and, "Hush, hush," when I asked her if she and Father couldn't fall in love all over again and get married. And she said not to get silly notions into my head. And she wasn't a bit flushed and tony, as she had been the night before, and she didn't talk at all as she had then, either. And it's been that way ever since. Things have gone along in just the usual humdrum way, and she's never been the same as she was that night I came.

Something—a little different—did happen yesterday, though. There's going to be another big astronomy meeting here in Boston this month, just as there was when Father found Mother years ago; and Grandfather brought home word that Father was going to be one of the chief speakers. And he told Mother he supposed she'd go and hear him.

"Well, yes, I am thinking of going," she said, just as calm and cool as could be. "When does he speak, Father?"

And when Aunt Hattie pooh-poohed, and asked how could she do such a thing, Mother answered:

"Because Charles Anderson is the father of my little girl, and I think she should hear him speak. Therefore, Hattie, I intend to take her."

And then she asked Grandfather again when Father was going to speak. I'm so excited! Only think of seeing my father up on a big platform with a lot of big men, and hearing him speak! "And he'll be the very smartest and handsomest one there, too. You see if he isn't!"

TWO WEEKS AND ONE DAY LATER

Father's here—right here in Boston. I don't know when he came. But the first day of the meeting was, day before yesterday, and he was here then.

"Stop! Would You Break Your Vow?"

An exile, with a price upon his head, he had returned to his home at the risk of his life because he believed his love untrue.

"I am marrying him to save you from the gallows—because I love you," she whispered.

And again he thundered, "STOP!"

"She is marrying to save a man who does not want to be saved. I am the man who killed the governor's son. Take me!"

Just one of the thrilling scenes in a fiery romance of Old Spain—a tale of undying love and wondrous adventure.

BEFORE BABY COMES

Watchful Care of Health Necessary

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a
Marvelous Help

West Orange, N. J.—"I was very nervous and upset for six months before my baby was born. One of my friends told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it for five months now. I have a big boy who weighed almost nine pounds at birth and I do all my housework and don't feel a bit nervous or upset any more. I still take your medicine and have told all my friends what good it has done me."

Mrs. MARGARET GREGORY, 440 Valley Road, West Orange, N. J.

West New York, N. J.—"The first two months I carried my baby I was in bed almost every day with sick headaches. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the first bottle helped me. I took seven more and I know I couldn't feel better than I did. The headaches stopped and I was able to do my own work. I have a baby girl six months old who weighs twenty pounds and is the picture of health."

Mrs. J. McCoy, 207 20th St., West New York, N. J.

Nervous and Run-Down
Biloxi, Miss.—"Just a word of praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with wonderful results before my baby was born. I was so nervous and run-down that I was a wreck of misery. I had pains in my sides and back so bad that I could not stay still or sleep nights. My husband was reading your 'ad.' in the paper and I decided to try your Vegetable Compound. After I had taken half a bottle I felt a change and was soon as well as ever. I took it the whole time, and I recommend it to every woman who is suffering as I was. People said that because I was so young I would never pull through and I praise your Vegetable Compound for my good health."

Mrs. E. J. STEVENS, 889 Fayard St., Biloxi, Miss.

Chicago, Ill.—"I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all prospective mothers. I suffered from weakness and faint spells and had to lie down twice a day for an hour or so before I could go on with my work. My cousin, who lives in Wisconsin, has used your Vegetable Compound for over five years and she came to us for a visit and she recommended it to me, saying she would pay for the bottle if it did not help me. I took that bottle and got more, as I found it gave me great relief. I recommend it to my friends and sisters and am willing for you to use these facts to help others."

Mrs. I. J. KUENSKI, 1213 W. 17th St., Chicago, Illinois.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken by expectant mothers. It will assist them in keeping well and strong. This is necessary not only for their own comfort but for the future as well.

It helped these women. It has helped many others.

NO HIT, NO RUN GAME PLAYED YESTERDAY; FAUVER PITCHED IT

It isn't only in the big leagues that no-hit, no-run games are pulled off. Fauver pitching for the West Side M. E. C. I. C. team against the Presbyterians yesterday in the Community Service Sunday School League performed that feat. His record was marred only by two bases on balls and one error, but he more than made up for them by banging out two home runs in addition to his pitching feat, striking out twelve men in the six innings. The only inning in which the Presbyterians had men on bases was the first and fifth. A double play, Fauver to Shaw to Lansberry, stopped the rally in the fifth. For the Presbyterians Kramer pitched the first four innings striking out four men and giving two bases on balls. Roseberry pitched the last two innings, striking out three men and giving two bases on balls. Both were hit hard, Johnson making two three baggers and Thompson one, in addition to Fauver's two home runs.

The score:

HUNT THE MONKEY WRENCH WHICH TIES UP ALL LEGISLATION

Washington, D. C., June 14.—Administration leaders in Congress say to work today to extract the monkey wrench from the legislative machinery. In which the sold or bonus, the tariff, the ship subsidy, the Muscle Shoals project, and other important items are jammed. A meeting of publicists is planned to form some sort of a cloture to cut short the debate on the tariff but it is generally admitted there is little possibility that the Legislative shelf may be cleaned before September.
